WUHAN IS THE BIGGEST CITY IN THE MIDDLE OF CHINA AND YOU CAN SUM IT UP BY LOOKING AT THE SPELLING OF ITS NAME.

“W” is for water.

Wuhan is nicknamed “the city of rivers”, because the Yangtze and the Han rivers meet here. The city is also noted for its lakes. Water makes up one quarter of its territory.

“U” is for university.

With a university student population of 1.3 million, Wuhan is the largest college town in the world.

“H” is for high technology.

Optical fibre, biotech, lasers, smartphones, they are all developed in Wuhan. The city is a high-tech hub and home to legions of top firms, such as Pfizer, Microsoft, Huawei, Xiaomi and HGTech.

“A” is for automobile.

Wuhan is one of China’s “motor cities”. 1 out of every 10 of the vehicles on the road in China is made here. General Motors, Honda, PSA Group and Dongfeng all have big manufacturing plants in Wuhan.

“N” is for noodle.

The hot dry noodles soaked in sesame paste known by the locals as Reganmian, are as much a trademark of Wuhan as spaghetti is in Rome or hamburgers in the US. During the coronavirus outbreak, the noodles became a symbol of solidarity. People all over China were cheering on the hot dry noodles.

“H” is for hero.

Wuhan went through a tough time with the epidemic. Now, with precious help from health worker heroes from all over the country and a concerted effort from its citizens, the city has regained its vitality and is steaming ahead.
